How does infrastructure management affect rural economic development? Share your experiences and help shape policy recommendations to support the future vitality of rural Ontario.

Are rural Ontario communities capable of responding to infrastructure pressures & opportunities? How does that capacity – or lack thereof – affect a community's current & future long-term economic development? Researchers at the University of Guelph are investigating these questions and will be looking for your input through surveys and workshops to develop evidence-based policy recommendations. Help us explore how we can build the future of rural infrastructure.
