DATA SOURCE

Data retrieved from FlightAware (www.flightaware.com).

This Research Insight is part of a research initiative examining trends in air service to airports serving rural and Northern Ontario communities. This Research Insight provides an overview of flight data tracked by FlightAware.

This data indicates the total number of flight arrivals and departures tracked by FlightAware at airports in Northern on July 28, 2023. The map indicates the amount of flights, with larger blue circles representing a higher number of flights. Flight connections (scheduled, charter and medical) recorded on July 28, 2023 are also shown, with solid lines indicating connections between airports in the study area, and dashed lines indicating connections beyond the study area. Icons also indicate whether an airport serves a community with all-season road access (purple) or not (yellow). The reverse side of this page lists study area airports and their number of tracked flights. Based on this data, the following conclusions were drawn:

- Hubs for air travel into remote Northern Ontario communities include Thunder Bay, Sioux Lookout, Red Lake, Timmins and Pickle Lake.
- Two distinct geographies of air travel in Northern Ontario exist, in northwestern and northeastern Ontario. The northwest includes significant connection with Winnipeg.
- Airports serving smaller municipalities along the Trans-Canada Highway corridors saw few flights.
